

Announcing the nominees of the 1st Gerardo de Cremona award

Thu, 01/10/2015 - 11:20 -- Press Office

The University Castilla La Mancha (UCLM) with the Translators school of Toledo have announced the nominees of the 1st Gerardo de Cremona award for the promotion of Translation in the Mediterranean region. The award goes to Malika Embarek López (Spain), Saleh Almani (Syria), Beirut School of Translators and Interpreters (Lebanon) and the Next Page Foundation (Bulgaria).

The Gerardo de Cremona Award is launched by the Translators School of Toledo (University of Castilla-La Mancha), King Abdulaziz Foundation (Casablanca, Morocco), MED 21 Programme and the City Council of Cremona (Italy) with the aim to honor the extensive career and significant contributions in the field of translation (practice, teaching, critiques, research, and reflection).

The Anna Lindh Foundation was cordially invited by the Executive committee of the award to contribute with nominations to the award.

The Awarding ceremony will be held on the 11th of November 2015 in Teatro de Rojas (Toledo – Spain) at 7:00 pm.
